

History

Key Principles:

Intent

History is all around us. The study of history ignites children’s curiosity about the past in Britain and the wider world. Through finding out about how and why the world, our country, culture and local community have developed over time, children understand how the past influences the present. We aim to offer a high-quality history education to help pupils gain a coherent knowledge and understanding of Britain’s past and that of the wider world. To ensure that this happens, the children will revisit key threads of knowledge through the different periods of history they cover. History helps pupils to understand the complexity of people’s lives, the process of change, the diversity of societies and relationships between different groups. It also helps children gain a sense of their own identity within a social, political, cultural and economic background. We want to inspire pupils’ curiosity to know more about the past and encourage them to question and investigate. We want to develop a strong understanding within our children of where they fit in within the historical timeline and our goal is to provide children with the opportunities to look back through their education and use prior knowledge to make links. The children will learn about chronology, significant historical events and people, considering connections, contrasts and trends over time. Children should be equipped to ask perceptive questions, think critically, weigh evidence, sift arguments, and develop perspective and judgement.

Implementation

History is taught as a blocked topic during immersion weeks throughout the year, (alongside Geography) so that children achieve depth in their learning. Teachers have identified the key knowledge and skills of each topic and consideration has been given to ensure progression across topics throughout each year group across the school. By the end of Year 6, children will have a chronological understanding of British history from the Stone Age to the present day. They are able to draw comparisons and make connections between different time periods and their own lives. Interlinked with this are studies of world history, such as the ancient civilisations of Greece, Rome, Egypt and the Mayans. Through teaching history in an immersion link we are able to utilise Literacy time to establish cross-curricular links. Outcomes of work are regularly monitored to ensure that they reflect a sound understanding of the key identified knowledge and demonstrate skills. Within our knowledge-rich approach, there is a strong emphasis on adapting our lessons, giving children the opportunity to take part in educational visits and have visitors to school to bring history to life and study the impact history has on us- allowing us to hang our learning on experiences that will enthuse the children further. The Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) follows the ‘Development Matters in the EYFS’ guidance which aims for all children in reception to have an ‘Understanding of the World; people and communities, the world and technology’ by the end of the academic year.
